

CRISIS IS APPROACHING IN MEXICAN SITUATION; U. S.
MAY TAKE DRASTIC ACTION

Strained Relations With England May Cause President Wilson to Tell Europe To Keep Hands Off Western Hemisphere in Present Controversy

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—An atmosphere of gravity and somber silence enveloped the Mexican situation here tonight, not only with regard to the dissatisfaction of the United States at Great Britain's attitude, but as to the critical state of affairs in Mexico City as the election of October 26 draws near. There were no tangible developments, but an incident of the day, which official Washington interpreted ominously was President Wilson's refusal to discuss Mexico, or any phases of the problem, when he met the Washington correspondents in the usual semi-weekly conference. The president heretofore always had discussed informally and unofficially matters of international consequence, giving the general status of affairs. Today he asked to be excused.

national consequence, giving the general status of affairs. Today he asked to be excused.

Secretary Bryan showed equal reticence. The conclusion drawn generally was that a crisis slowly was approaching, that the arrival of General Felix Diaz appeared to complicate international affairs in Mexico and that stern measures by the Washington government would not be surprising.

There is a confident feeling in official circles that whatever pronouncement President Wilson will make after the elections will be an emphatic re-

Situation Considered Grave.

For the first time in the talk of recess and adjournment of congress, the Mexican situation was injected as a reason for keeping the national legislature in session and in administration circles it was admitted that it was not the currency problem alone which made it advisable for members to stay in Washington.

It became apparent in well-informed eration that the United States will stand by its policy of 'drilling only with the governments founded on law and order,' and there is a likelihood he will go a step further and assert an intention of seeing that constitutional government is maintained on this hemisphere despite foreign influences.

The Washington administration considers that the Huerta government is toppling, that natural resentment was being manifested throughout Mexico quarters that Great Britain's failure to repudiate the action of Sir Lionel Gardiner, British minister to Mexico, who presented his credentials immediately after Huerta proclaimed his dictatorship had caused Washington officials to feel that they no longer could depend upon the help of England in solving the Mexican problem and that henceforth the United States would go forward single handed if necessary in a firm and aggressive policy. Whether this will be revealed in a declaration by the United States of her intention as "the nearest neighbor" to take such steps as will compose the situation, has not materialized but many officials believe the Washington government will soon assert itself in a manner that will be tantamount to a notice to Europe generally that interference in Mexico by foreign powers is not desired by this country. Officials pessimistic.

The attitude of some of the administration officials, hitherto strong advocates of a policy of moral suasion, was decidedly pessimistic today, and they reluctantly admitted that the United States government might take drastic action.

Though officials do not discuss the British attitude in any way, persons close to the administration say the policy of Great Britain has created an embarrassing situation here with an ever-increasing tension. It is not likely that Ambassador Page and the British foreign office will discuss Mexico until after the elections of October 26, as Sir Edward Grey was reported as intimating that he would not bind the

President Huerta Promises
Again to Lead Country
Out of Dilemma

MEXICO CITY Oct. 27—General Victoriano Huerta, provisional president of Mexico, made a statement to day which was afterwards read in the presence of all the members of the diplomatic corps and the cabinet ministers. In this statement General Huerta gave his most solemn assurance that the sole use that he will make of his power as provisional president will be to establish first peace in the republic and second to comply with the law of his country in holding fair elections so that the choice of the Mexican people, whoever it be, will be installed as president.

General Diaz left the capital for the state of Veracruz. In spite of the fact that the Diaz party had attempted to flee the capital, the flowers had prepared a trap for the party. The Diaz party was arrested at the capital, tomorrow, although the attempt appears to be an error.

The Veracruz authorities deny the receipt of an order for the arrest of General Diaz but the assurance is not sufficient to allow the general to venture from the house.

The general was arrested a few days ago and it is reported, will sail with five passengers. It is supposed these five are the official guests to accompany the general to remain in the area. They are not to be released until the general is released.

ffecting the government of their country

Not True Democracy.
"It must be understood clearly, he said, that from the standpoint of representative government, where the people have a right to and do express their opinions at the polls, Mexico never has had a government by the people. In the sense in which there is democracy in Great Britain, Germany, France and the United States, there is not, and never has been, a democracy in Mexico.

"The best government Mexico has ever had," continued General Huerta,
"has been a government by the few,
and it will be a long time before Mexico is able to have any other kind of government. It will require many years to bring the country to a point where millions of men will be able to go to the polls and cast a ballot and abide by the result of that ballot.

What the people of the whole world want for Mexico is that it shall have a government fashioned upon the lines of the governments of England, the U. S., France, Germany and Italy. But the people of Mexico, satisfied with the present state of the country and the vast interests which foreign nations have at stake in the country.

"As it is impossible to impose the will of any foreign country upon the Mexican people except by force, the logical course of all the governments of the world, especially the government of the United States, is that they shall give to the government for the time being in Mexico their recognition and moral support in the efforts which that government is putting forward for the protection of the lives and interests of foreigners, including Americans, throughout the country.

United States Would Insure Risks.
Should the United States fail to recognize the established government, General Huerta declared it would incur
the risk of precipitating in this country
a crisis which might bring Washington face to face with the governments at London, Paris and Berlin, and which might lead either to the setting aside of the Monroe doctrine or to the appalling injustice of intervention by the United States in Mexico, bringing two friendly nations into hostile conflict which the people did not wish and which ought to be avoided.

"Washington," said Huerta, "can give no sufficient answer to the people of the United States nor the people of Europe if through its conduct a consequence so repugnant to the universal sense of justice is brought about.
If such a crisis is forced on Mexico,
no blockading of the ports of Mexico
will be of any value for the collection of the interests and principal of anybody's debts and as the United States is by its proximity the only country which can enforce the will of a foreign power on Mexico by troops the result would in the long run mean that the people of the United States would be involved in a conflict which would cost them in addition to at least 250,000 lives more money than the entire foreign investment in Mexico.
There can be no sufficient reason given for permitting such a calamity to occur."

'PIKES PEAK'

and short talks were made by Mayor C. L. McKesson, President Austin Gaylin of Glenwood Springs, Judge J. W. Deane of Aspen, Jos. W. Clarke of Leadville and J. K. Rouse of Burlington. Enthusiasm for the Lincoln Highway was manifest in all addresses, and many expressions as to the cooperation between Colorado Springs and the eastern and western parts of the state through which the highway passes were made.

National Highway Men Talk.

At the afternoon meeting F. H. Gaylin, organizer for the National Highway association made an address full of good roads enthusiasm. He explained the purpose and the work of this organization which is seeking to secure legislation by congress for the construction by the federal government of a system of 50,000 miles of national highways. He likened the work of developing a system of national highways to that of building the Panama canal in importance.

Among the delegates present were: President Austin Gaylin, Glenwood Springs; James McMillan, Bismarck; J. K. Rouse, Burlington; Paul H. Minn, R. Kober, Aspen; R. Edwards, P. Owen, Seibert, Judge J. W. Deane, Aspen; J. J. Reister, Cathlamet; Matheson, Matteson, D. A. Chapin, Joseph W. Clarke, Leadville; Charles

E. Bruce, Manitou, Curt Goerke, Manitou, Dr. A. J. O'Log, Aspen; Frank Thompson, Limon, Jerome P. Wheeler, Manitou, Leonard E. Curtis, B. A. Banta, G. W. Blake, an E. House, R. E. Mahoney, H. Hutchinson, W. D. Quackenbush, E. A. Sawyer, Dr. S. A. Garth, Colorado Springs; F. R. Sherwin, Jr. of Palmer Lake, and W. H. Emmons, secretary of the Colorado Good Roads association.

Report Shows Work Done.

The report of Secretary-Treasurer A. W. Henderson detailed the work which has been done in the matter of completing the internal organization of the association, in legislation, in marking, in advertising, securing and publishing of logs and of getting in touch with various national and connecting good roads associations. The financial report showed total receipts to be $506.44, with expenses for publicity, stationery, postage, log books, advertising, markers, printing, cuts, photos and bulletins amounting to $420.49, leaving a balance of $85.95, with uncollected accounts due the association amounting to $488.53. The secretary's report in part was as follows:

Efforts have been continued to have the American Automobile association complete its log of the Lincoln highway by making a log of that section between Limon and Wagon Mound. Mr. W. O. L. Westgard, who accompanied the Indiana tour and made the log from Limon to Colorado Springs, and we are now in correspondence with the New York office relative to a pathfinding

ADMIRAL EATON IS CALLED DRUG FIEND

Naval Officers O-pled by Defense to Tell of Intemperance Habits

PLYMOUTH, Mass., Oct. 22.—Rear Admiral Joseph G. Eaton, whose widow, Mrs. Jennie May Eaton, is on trial here, charged with his murder, was painted, in the opening address of the defense today, as a "drug fiend and a man of dual personality, a veritable Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

Attorney Francis J. Geogan, who made the opening argument, said it would be shown that Admiral Eaton was addicted to the use of liquor and drugs to such an extent that he endangered his vessel and the lives of men under him when in the navy. He attributed the death of the admiral to arsenic, self-administered. Mr. Geogan announced that Mrs. Eaton, the defendant, would take the stand and tell the story of her life.

"We will show you there was no friction between Mrs. Eaton and her husband up to the time of his illness," said Mr. Geogan. "There was no misunderstanding."

No Motive for Killing.

Mr. Geogan said it would be shown that the admiral left Mrs. Eaton nothing but a heritage of debts, and that she could have no motive for desiring his death.

On the other hand, he said, as a motive for keeping him alive, she had the fact that an income of $4,500 a year, representing the admiral's retired pay, ceased at his death. The defendant, the attorney added, would not hide behind a cloak of insanity. Dr. F. Fremont Smith of Washington, D. C., the first defense witness testified regarding the admiral's habits of intemperance at the time of his first wife's illness and death. It developed by Dr. Smith's testimony that naval records show Admiral Eaton to have been afflicted with a disease for which arsenic and other drugs sometimes were administered. It was Dr. Smith who secured the services of Mrs. D. H. Almsworth to nurse the admiral's first wife, and he described her as "faithful and true to her charge." She later became Mrs. Eaton, and now is the defendant in the case.

Tell of Intemperance Habits.

Rear Admiral Charles E. Clark, commander of the battleship Oregon on his famous voyage around the world, testified that, as president of the naval examining and retiring board, he declined a request from Admiral Eaton for an "honorable discharge" on the ground that the admiral's first wife died of cerebral apoplexy, which might be a symptom of the disease for which the admiral had been treated.

tour from Colorado Springs over

Tennawaspe to connect up with the Lincoln highway in hand. As publication of the detailed maps of the route has been delayed until 1914, it is probable that the entire Lincoln highway of Colorado will be shown on these maps.

"Mr. A. L. Westgard, now director of the transcontinental highway for the National Highway association, has logged the entire route. He was with the Indiana tour from the Kansas line to Colorado Springs, and in September came back from the west over Tennessee and Mississippi.

"That the Lincoln highway of Colorado will eventually become a part of the great transcontinental highway is beyond argument. This association welcomes the development of every possible road and it rejoices in the stimulus which general consideration of transcontinental highways is giving to road development in every state and community. Regardless of what other routes may be developed the material will take the route that is most attractive, most highly developed, most central and most practicable. If the counties interested in the Lincoln highway of Colorado continue the work they have begun with their present enthusiasm, that road will be the Lincoln highway of Colorado."

Has Many Advantages.

"It has the natural advantage. It is the central route, striking right into the heart of the state. This is shown by the fact that at Colorado Springs it is 150 miles to New Mexico and 170 to Wyoming. It is the shortest route—540 miles from Kansas to Utah and present construction is shortening this by 50 miles or more. With its connect-

DOCTOR'S SON ARRESTED IN AUTO-BULLDOG CASE

Tried to Exchange Tires for Wheel and Get Away; Father Comes To day to Get Car

As a result of their alleged attempt to dispose of two automobile tires obtained Wednesday night from the F. M. Auto company garage where the automobile from Taos, N. M., is being held by the police, Jack Martin and Paul Ferguson were arrested by the police yesterday afternoon. The two girls who came to this city with the young men, were taken into custody and will be held at the detention house.

Dr. T. P. Martin, the owner of the machine and bulldog, will be in this city today for his property. According to the police, he will also give instructions as to the disposition of the four people arrested in connection with the case.

Jack Martin, son of Dr. Martin, is alleged to have taken his father's automobile on the pretext of going to a dance. With Ferguson and the two girls and the bulldog, the trip to this city was made and would have been continued further had it not been for the interruption by the police.

The two young men were accused as they were attempting to trade the two automobile tires for a front wheel and it is thought they sought to replace the wheel removed by the police to prevent the machine from being taken from the garage. The bulldog is faithfully watching the car and will allow no one to molest the machine.

Captain Munns, of Cornell's Eleven

Here is Captain Munns of this year's Cornell eleven. After last year's disastrous season Coach Al Sharpe is endeavoring to whip a team into shape that will deserve the title of "The Big Red Team." He is counting heavily on Captain Munns, who, playing a guard position, is a tower of strength to the Cornell line. This is Munns' third year on the team.

behind him. Speaker is the choice over Cobb for center field, for Tris
is the best ground coverer in either league.

Three Athletic players—Collins, Baker and Barry—make up many of the managers' infielders. But McGraw prefers Arthur Fletcher as a shortstop.
The Giants' shortstop is a much improved player, and while he failed to distinguish himself in the world series,
his work during the season was brilliant, and McGraw now thinks that right field is entitled to Barry's position on an All-American team at short McGraw names Sallee in Star Selection.

In his selection, the "Little Napoleon" gives three southpaw places in his lineup. They are Plank, Rucker and Sallee. Walter Johnson and Muffy are his other pitching selections.

"Sallee is a great pitcher," said Mc-Graw, when making his team, "but his pitching has not been noticed. A year because he was with a tail end team and had lots of trouble in putting over a winner. The Cardinals' southpaw has always proved effective against the Giants, and if he had a good team to back his pitching, he would win more games than he would lose."

"Rucker is still a great left-hander,
and the day we won the pennant Nap shut out the Giants. Rucker has a wonderful knuckle ball, and besides this, he studies his batters carefully and depends upon his infielders to do their share of the work."

Mack Thinks Athletics Can Be Improved
Connie Mack thinks that his club can be improved on, and he picks his All-American team from the results the players accomplished during the season.

There is hardly a better balanced infield than that of Mack's $100,000 quartet of players. "There may be some better individuality, but picking them as an outfit, I do not see where McInnis, Collins, Barry and Baker can be beaten," said Connie Mack. He fails to give Ty Cobb a place in the outfield. Connie considers Oldring the best leftfielder in the American league, and favors Speaker and Joe Jackson for the other two outfield positions.

Hugh Jennings of the Tigers is undecided about the shortstop position.

THREE UTAH PLAYERS ARE PROTESTED BY C. C.; DOWN IN STUDIES IS THE CHARGE

Conferences"

DENVER, Oct. 23. The faculty members of the Rocky Mountain intercollegiate conference on athletics yesterday considered the alleged ineligibility of three University of Utah football players. The men are Captain Sutherland, Sumner, a former North Denver High school boy, and Crough.
The complaint was made by Colorado college. Utah defeated the Tigers 7 to 6 Saturday. It is understood that Colorado college made protest before the game, not against these men especially, but against the ruling of the Utah faculty, which permitted them to play.

The men objected to are members of the engineering school of Utah university. It is asserted that they did not carry two-thirds of full work last semester, that is two-thirds of the work required according to the catalogue. The Utah faculty, it is said, passed a rule of its own permitting men to take part in athletics providing they completed a certain number of hours arbitrarily fixed by the faculty, but which is less than two-thirds of the printed requirements.
As there is a ruling in the conference to ignore championships, it is unlikely that the game played at Colorado Springs will be through. However, these men will play at San Lake City Saturday against the Miners in another quarrel. The Miners left this morning taking an official with them. All of the Mines regulars except Lavender made the trip.

CLEAN VS. UNCLEAR JOURNALISM

THE sale of the Rocky Mountain News and the Denver Times to John C. Shaffer of Chicago, publisher of several influential Eastern papers, ought to have a revolutionary effect on Denver journalism. The News under Senator Patterson's control has always been Democratic in politics and ultra-sensational in its general character. The Times is a stormy petrel of journalism; it has changed hands so often and lost so much money for everybody who happened to own it for the moment that its individuality long since disappeared.

Mr. Shaffer, the new owner of the News and the Times, is a believer in clean journalism. And this fact probably will be of more interest to Colorado people, in connection with his enterprises here, than the political course he may adopt. For the truth is that the public is steadily concerning itself more and more with the morals and ethics of its newspapers than with their politics.

In the newspaper world generally Denver papers have the unsavory reputation of adhering to lower standards than the press of any other city of equal size in the country. How they can live and prosper is a never-ending marvel. As a matter of fact only two of them do prosper; the others merely manage to hang on.

The fact that the two which are most prosperous are also the most sensational may be taken by the superficial observer as proof that the people want that kind of journalism, but this is a wrong conclusion. The ranker and more sensational a thing may be, the bigger the crowd it attracts this is true not only in the realm of journalism but in those of the drama and literature as well. But the capacity to attract the crowd does not necessarily mean the possession of wide influence.

Mr. Shaffer will have an opportunity to reform Denver journalism in many ways, but there is one which occurs to us just now as of special importance. This is the treatment of news of crime. Every day the readers of the Rocky Mountain News must suffer the infliction of interminable columns of pictures and descriptive matter about crime and criminals. The sordid, debasing side of everything is exalted and glorified; the whole tendency is destructive rather than constructive, and gradually the viewpoint of the reader is warped and twisted until he looks at life through the eyes of the cynic, seeing nothing that is good and pure and noble, and everything that is mean and degrading and morbid.

We do not say that this method of reading news is peculiar to any one Denver paper or to the papers of that city alone. It is common throughout the country, but, thank heaven, it is gradually being supplanted by a saner, healthier attitude. It is not an easy thing for the conscientious publisher to decide the niceties of journalistic ethics which arise day by day, and to judge infallibly just how the sensational news shall be handled. But it is a sound policy, we believe, gradually to minimize the importance of stories of crime and immorality, to give them smaller space and less prominent display. If this is done, the public demand for such stuff will eventually disappear for after all it is an appetite which grows with what it feeds upon.

So far as The Gazette is concerned, we intend to adhere to this policy until people who want to read news of crime and the seamy side of life generally—other than the bare facts unadorned with lurid details—will have to turn to some other paper for their information.

A QUESTION OF JUDICIAL FITNESS

RITTER criticism has been made of the course of the Progressive party in the recent judicial campaign in Illinois. The Progressives, led by a number of women, made an especial effort to defeat the Republican candidate, on the ground that past decisions had shown him biased in favor of the corporations. Most lawyers and reactionaries of all parties have held that to elect or defeat a man because of the trend of his opinions is to destroy the independence of the judiciary. In view of the very bitter ac-sations that have been made against the Progressive women, their statement, made on the eve of election, is of interest.

"In the campaign the women have admitted that, although Judge Puterbaugh's personal life was unimpeachable, yet his judicial record, as disclosed by his decisions in the appellate court of Illinois was hopelessly biased in favor of the great corporate interests and vested property rights and against human rights and the individual. They further charged that in more than a hundred and fifty cases Judge Puterbaugh, as an appellate court judge, had either written or concurred in the opinion of the appellate court reversing in favor of corporations verdicts rendered for individuals who had lost legs or arms or had been crippled for life.

"A careful perusal of these decisions discloses that the judge, owing to a mental bias, ever leans toward corporate interests when they are opposed to the individual; that his construction of the doctrine of assumed risk, contributory negligence, and the fellow-servant doctrine is almost invariably construed by him upon a legal technicality in favor of corporations as against the claims of injured humanity. In short, that Judge Puterbaugh has a corporation squint, and, furthermore, that the excited interest and activity of the well known Peoria industries deserves the careful scrutiny of voters in his district."

There, then, in a nutshell, is the issue: Judge Puterbaugh's previous decisions had a corporation squint, he was one of those judges who permit technicalities to defeat the plain ends of justice. Did the women have a right to point to his past record? Are the people justified in refusing to re-elect a judge whose decisions have been narrowly technical, constantly opposed to the broad principles of social justice? Is there, indeed, any other way in which American courts can be cleansed of their worship of technicalities than in the way the women of Illinois adopted?

For the women succeeded in defeating Judge Puterbaugh, though not in electing the Progressive candidate. Whether the Democrat who slipped in will take a broader view of the law than the defeated Republican remains to be seen. There are those who profess to fear that an election such as this will bias courts in favor of the people, and against the just rights of the corporations. There have been mighty few such courts in American history. Americans have always shown themselves exceedingly solicitous of protecting every just right of property even in human beings and there is no indication that American character has so changed as to condone the doing of injustice, even to the worst corporation.

But the Illinois election showed plainly the clear-cut division between the Progressives and the old parties in regard to the courts. The old parties believe the judicial system should be preserved as it is; the Progressives that courts must be made answerable to the well-considered will of the people just as English courts are. It was the first battle in what will be a long and desperate fight.

THE SINGLE TAX

ASK the average man his opinion of the single tax, and he will instantly tell you that he is against it. Ask him why, and he doesn't know, except that it is "a crazy socialistic scheme," an explanation which means anything or nothing. Most of the opposition to the single tax is based on ignorance, which, in turn, is due to the willingness of most people to take their views of complicated questions at second hand, rather than go to the trouble of investigating them.

It happens, though, that this is one of the economic problems which every intelligent citizen will have to investigate soon or late, because it is gaining so many converts all over the country that it is rapidly becoming a live issue. There is general dissatisfaction with the present system of taxation because it is both inequitable and inefficient; therefore if the single tax offers something better it behooves us to learn about it.

At the Chamber of Commerce rooms tonight, Mr. J. J. Pastoriza, finance and tax commissioner of Houston, Tex., will discuss the subject of "Taxation" with special reference to the limited application of the Henry George theories in his city. The meeting will be open to the public and ought to prove both instructive and interesting.

FROM OTHER PLACES

SINGLE TAX
To the disciples of Henry George it seems as if that pioneer's views were not being accepted as readily as they ought to be but to most others it looks as if they were traveling fast. Like many other creative thoughts the central idea of Mr. George is influencing the world profoundly even where it is accepted only as one principle in taxation instead of as the only principle.

Progress here and there is constantly observable. Sometimes it is in big changes and sometimes it is in details such as for instance in the fact that Mr. Pastoriza known in Houston Tex. as a single taxer was elected tax commissioner as a joke. He went a long way, however, toward putting his ideas into effect and met with such a reception that the press is writing in many papers of Texas. Mr. Pastoriza is a person of graphic ideas. He put up a sign in two diam looking vacant lots stating that the lots cost him in 1902 $270 and that he means to hold them until the increase of population has made them worth $2,600. This proved a very good illustration of the community which created it and who would have believed it in buttermilk had it not been for the single tax. Read Progress and Poverty by Henry George.

Houston has halved the tax on buildings and seems to be playing with a single tax. It is a very wise thing to do. It is a very wise thing to do. It is a very wise thing to do.

human mind which makes it take a long time to move, even when motion is to its unmistakable advantage.

THE PHILADELPHIA WALLOP

When an Lilliputian body of battlers meets an immense body of pitiless steeling plainly must happen. And it did happen yesterday. There was a real scrap at the Polo grounds. All the batting was on one side by any means. But to crumple two pitiless one same must be conceded to be a fair batting for an team having designs on a world's series.

It is a dreadful array of names that Philadelphia batting list. There doesn't seem to be a moment of peace or tenderness or Christian charity in it. They hit 'em where they ain't (as the immortal Mr. Keeler said), they bang them madly where they are (they hunt 'em wait, and then along comes Mr. Baker and puts the right field bleachers or the fence or Westchester county on the map.

IMAGINATION

BY GEORGE FITCH
Author of "At Good Old Siwash"

Imagination is seeing things back of the eyes. Some men have to walk 10 miles in order to gaze upon a vacant lot and make sure it is there. Other men can remain 100 miles away and see the lot with a 10-story office building on top of it.

Some men can only see the half-pound fish which they haul in on their lines. Other men can see and describe accurately the 11-pounders which were within four feet of the surface when they fell off the hook.

Some men can only see a day's work when they rise in the morning. Other men can hardly see the work because of the flock of palaces, private yachts and country estates which loom up just behind it.

If a man has imagination as well as no imagination, he can see about a mile and a half on this earth, and into the future as far as he can poke his finger.

But the man with imagination can be enjoying a ball game while he is waiting for a train, and he can gamble around in next year as readily and profitably as if he had an annual pass on tomorrow, signed by the president of the universe.

Imagination keeps some men happy and powerful while they are hunting for jobs. It elects other presidents while they are running for the office of corner. It makes champions and heroes of men who are not at all such, and it makes witnesses are unavoidably absent; and it keeps many people climbing large and knobby mountains of woe and tribulation which they might easily step over if they only thought so.

Imagination gives a man wings, and makes him a resident of the century gone and of the centuries to come. It also gives a man a home in a while. Beware of the other fellow's imagination. Too many men have peered into a damp and rain-soaked hole in the ground in the west and have seen therein wheelbarrow loads of solid gold, which they have sold to eager investors very much farther east.

Imagination is an exhilarating as whiskey, and much safer on the system. But every man should equip his imagination with a cut-out lever. A little imagination will increase a man's happiness 100 per cent, but when it gets to work on his troubles it makes them grow like dog weed in a potato patch. (Copyrighted by George Matthew Adams)

The Errand-Doer

BY RUTH CAMERON

This is by way of being a little plea for someone who seems to me an under-appreciated personage. For want of a better title, I'll call her the "errand-doer."

The errand-doer, as you may suspect, is that soft-hearted person, who is always so weak-mindedly amiable about doing errands for other people, that she is always doing them.

"You say you're going to town tomorrow. Do you think you will be anywhere near J's? Because if you are, I wonder if it would be too much bother for you to get a yard of Point Venice for me to finish that dress I want to wear the day after tomorrow?"

"I won't. You are such a dear I don't believe it will take you very long. Go right to J's ice counter. I saw just the other what I want there the other day."

My dear would you mind getting me a pair of gloves the next time you go to town. I'll tell you the size and the kind and you can go right to J's. It won't be very much bother. I hate to ask you, but you know I'm so tied down with the baby, that I simply can't get to town and I'm really suffering for a pair of gloves."

Such are the pleas that continually come to the errand-doer and she almost always accedes to them with a "there's nothing I like better" manner that naturally does not decrease them.

I fancy the stay at home person who proffers such requests at these instead of relieving them, is bridling indignantly and thinking "Well, I don't see anything so terrible about doing an errand now and then for a friend. I'm sure I'd be glad enough to do things for other people if I could get out instead of being tied down at home. One in the office as the case may be."

Q. Is it so bad? I'm sure you would not I am not asking you to dispense with the errand-doer service. All I ask is that you shall not understate what she does and not fail to tell show your gratitude and to overlook her.

Remember that the difficulty of an errand done for oneself is multiplied by three when you do it for someone else. In this way, first if you are doing an errand for someone else you have her rate as well as yours to consult, which takes twice as long and is an anxious task to both. Secondly, if you are doing an errand for someone else you do not have the privilege of elasticity of price you would have in buying for yourself. Third you do not have the privilege of elasticity of detail you would have in buying for yourself.

For instance the lady who wanted the third of lace said I don't believe I will take you very long. Go right to J's lace counter. I saw what you wanted there the other day. But she asked for a yard two inches wide at one dollar and one half. They were out of the width at that price at J's. If the errand doer had been shopping for herself she would have paid for the yard of lace at one dollar and eight cents. But she knew her friend had to buy in pence and she didn't like to go to the trouble of explaining the price of lace to her. So she bought the yard of lace at one dollar and eight cents. I don't think she much to appreciate how much she is getting. Don't you?

ODDS AND ENDS

Congratulations to the people of Denver. With the News and the Times owned by John C. Shaffer of Chicago there will be no more of the Colorado capital two clean, decent, independent newspapers, unless Mr. Shaffer goes back on the policy he has so successfully followed in Chicago, Louisville Indianapolis, Muncie and Terre Haute.

And that old stormy petrel of Colorado politics, Thomas M. Patterson, will retire after long years of half fighting. He has done some good, much harm. Of late years he has seemed to lean more and more to the latter side. But he was always interested and his retirement will leave a void in Democratic politics that no one else can fill.

The change will not work to the injury of Colorado Progressives. The Times under old management, though standard, has treated the Progressives with courtesy. The News has done everything to belittle the movement Mr. Shaffer's eastern papers, in the last campaign supported Roosevelt.

New Haven stockholders have decided to take a hand in the running of their road. They voted the other day to make the directors obey the law in issuing new bonds.

It would seem as if that particular official stupidity that consists in trying to suppress unfavorable reports would soon end, so many are the examples of its utter uselessness. But another instance has just come to light. The Indian commissioner attempted to suppress the report of a special examiner. And the only result, as usual, is to give the report wider publicity than it could possibly have had otherwise.

The little difference of opinion with Great Britain gives the newspaper correspondents something to write about, but it is hardly likely that all able-bodied males will be called to the colors for a few weeks yet, at least.

Colorado's insane asylum turns away insane patients, who must be held in county jails. And Colorado has no money with which to enlarge the asylum. Which is a fair measure of the statesmanship that has been developed in the past in the two old parties.

Houston, Texas, has been setting the place in tax reform. Wonderful stories are told of the success that has been achieved. J. J. Pastoriza, the man who has done the work, will be in this city tonight. Colorado Springs citizens ought to learn much from the Texan—for we have much to learn.

Congressman Keating has introduced his resolution for an investigation of the Colorado coal strike. Governor Ammons had better hurry with his settlement of the strike; an investigation will reveal a state of affairs not at all flattering either to Colorado or to the state administration.

Thomas Quinn, candidate for commissioner of public works at Fort Collins, had an attack of cold feet at the last moment, and withdrew on the very morning of election.

Denver always has considered herself apart from and above the rest of the state, and is proceeding now to defy the orders both of the tax commission and the state board of equalization in the assessment of taxes. It will be for the courts to decide whether or not Denver is bigger than all the rest of the state.

After a period of unaccountable quiet the Denver papers have a new murder and suicide story, and so are happy again, reveling in all the gory details, and inventing more in order to give it the proper flavor for the Denver appetite.

The Fort Collins city election on Tuesday was, of course, nonpartisan, the first under commission government but it just happened that of the two candidates for mayor one was a Progressive, one a G. O. P. The Progressive, S. H. Chamber, was elected by a majority of 482. He has been mayor before and stands for municipal ownership and a dry town.

No employee of any coal company has yet been accused by any peace officer of assisting any union member to advertise the coal trust. Personal attacks on the trust's contribution to the present industrial disturbance is its refusal to deal with the men through their organization. And that happens to be the sole cause of the strike.

Will the cost of all this coal trust advertising by the way, be added to the price of coal and paid for by the consumer?

Dr. Montague and his family left for their new home in Massachusetts.

The Manitou & Pike's Peak railroad was still running trains to the summit—the longest season it had ever had.

How the Panama Canal Was Built

CHAPTER VII.
Goethals Master Mind of the Enormous Undertaking.

Back of this plan of making the laborer more than a human machine was a master mind.

It was not until Colonel George W. Goethals was sent to the Isthmus to become chief engineer and chairman of the Isthmian canal commission that the enterprise began to assume its real measure of success.

It was his idea to get an organization, a tremendous force for work, in which each individual would be a unit on giving to the government the vast task that was in him. Recognition of the laborer's right to be considered a man was Goethals's master-stroke.

Goethals has accomplished more for the elevation of the status of the laborer than can easily be understood. His achievement at Panama, doing more work in less time and better than was ever before done, has inspired a lesson upon the labor movement, the superintendents and foremen all over the world.

In his first speech on arrival at the Isthmus, Colonel Goethals said he wanted no saluting on the spot, that no man would be judged by the salutes that he gave, but rather by the work that he did. Then he took off his own uniform, and from that day has never worn it on the work.

Next Colonel Goethals made a rule that every man at work in Panama should live in Panama. He then moved into a house on the brink of Cuernavaca, where he could look down on the construction trains, the steam shovels, the drill machinery, the manifold engineering of that vast undertaking.

As he looked into the unions and saw contractors, Colonel Goethals perceived a danger. He said the men were not there to fight one another but to fight the Culebra slides and the Chagres river. Besides, it was not a private enterprise for profit, but a government project for the good of the world. He reworded the scale of work, and he made strikes. The first workmen who attempted to act in concert in demanding an increase were discharged immediately.

Foremen were ordered to disavow at the men under them, as this rule was rigidly enforced. Goethals who had no other while on the Isthmus, suddenly told to wait. Colonel Goethals, who will go down in history as the builder of the canal and the one man without whom it would have been impossible, was born in Scotland, in the old Teulach church. His parents were Holts, and his grandfather, a doctor.

His father was so poor that the boy at 11 years was at work running errands for a broker and selling school at the same time. He started at $4 a week, and kept the job until he earned $13, and all the time was asked to keep up with his classmates well ahead, so that he got an A in his school. He went on to study in a public school, and then in a private school.

In scholarship at West Point Goethals stood steady in a class of fifty-two. Only two men were not in the corps of engineers from that class, and Goethals was one of them.

After years as an army engineer Goethals was transferred to a station under Colonel Merrill at Cincinnati.

"The most unfortunate thing for me," said Merrill, "was that you are a lieutenant."

"I am here to learn," answered Goethals, and he started out as a man.

From then on with Goethals it was drill. He rose rapidly, and built dikes, dams, jetties and canals in the tropics during the Spanish war, at the time preparing for his naval work, the construction of the canal, the construction of the Atlantic-Pacific.

WHAT THE PROGRESSIVES ARE DOING

THE PROGRESSIVE PARTY PROGRESSING

From the Public

Although Edmund B. Osborne failed to carry the New Jersey Progressive party primary, he did succeed in committing the party and his successful opponent to a truly progressive program. Since this was his object, he has gained a substantial victory in spite of apparent defeat. The party convention, which, under the New Jersey primary law, consists of all the nominees, adopted a platform declaring unequivocally for home rule, single tax, municipal ownership, initiative, referendum, recall and preferential vote. Mr. Everett P. Colby, the gubernatorial nominee, in his preliminary campaign opposed single tax and municipal ownership, but his willingness to accept the platform indicates objection to the name rather than the substance. If he will make an energetic fight on the splendid platform provided he will surely deserve success.

New Jersey is not the only state where the Progressive party is progressive. In Massachusetts the party seems inclined the same way. In explaining its attitude toward the income tax, the secretary of its state committee, Mr. John R. Nichols, declares such a tax to be "acceptable and justifiable only in so far as it is a preliminary step out of the taxation morass." He then points to land value taxation as the true remedy.

Equally significant is the address given at New York on October 3 by Gifford Pinchot, at the farewell dinner to Colonel Roosevelt. Mr. Pinchot said that "instead of a genuine democracy we have in fact a magnate system of government that system of control by the very rich for their own profit. The Civil war has furthered the left untouched economic slaves which is founded upon the privilege of controlling the things which men need to live. And he is in a position to party must stand for the abolition of privilege in these words. Special privilege being wrong, we can not be satisfied with merely mitigating its effects. We cannot be content with soothing syrups, placed at the throat of our energy on remedies which cannot cure. Our task is to abolish privilege. Unless we stand for this, we stand for nothing that is permanently worth while." The same advice is needed by the Democratic party and every other party that does not openly stand for privilege.

Theodore Roosevelt himself speaks out more plainly in the October Century on land value taxation than he has in his "Confession of Faith" and his New York address of March, 1912. He says that "municipalities should have complete self-government as regards all the affairs that are exclusively their own, including the important matter of taxation and the burden of municipal taxation should be so shifted as to put the weight of land taxation upon the unearned rise in value of the land itself rather than upon the improvements." Perhaps in time he will realize that the same principle should be applied to state and national taxes as well. The sooner he does, the sooner will he be able to command more reasonably than he has on such matters as the monopoly question and President Wilson's "New Freedom." But the part of this article quoted, shows that he is progressing with his party.

TO MAKE A HAT FIT

From the New York Tribune

Follow my advice and your derby will stand any Woolworth or Plafonista, said a Broadway business man to his companion as the latter brushed his recent lid with his coat sleeve. "When I buy a new hat I always wave the hand over a gas jet, put it on my head and let it cool there. Result—perfect fit. Try it."

INVENTOR OF SODA HONOR

Ernest Solvay of Brussels Is Public Benefactor

From the London Chronicle

BRUSSELS.—The inventor of soda water generally, in use throughout the world, the great Belgian chemist Ernest Solvay, recently celebrated his seventy-fifth anniversary, his wedding, and at the same time his fifty-fifth anniversary of the foundation by him of the Solvay society of scientists, the original parent manufacturer of soda by the Solvay process.

King Albert has taken the opportunity of these notable events in the life of the eminent Belgian scientist to appoint him grand officer of the Legion of Merit, and amongst the honors offered to Mr. Solvay are the coveted Lavoisier medal presented to him by the Institute of France, and

Apart from scientists, few people realize the great debt which humankind owes to the sciences. In 1901, the first Nobel Prize was awarded to a scientist. Since then, the Nobel Prize has become the highest honor in the scientific world. The Nobel Prize is awarded to scientists who have made outstanding contributions to the advancement of science. The Nobel Prize is awarded to scientists who have made outstanding contributions to the advancement of science. The Nobel Prize is awarded to scientists who have made outstanding contributions to the advancement of science.

owes to Ernest Solvay, the inventor of chemical industry, and the French chemist J. B. Dumas, that the two greatest inventions of the nineteenth century were the steam engine and artificial soda.

Soda is in daily use in every household throughout the civilized world in the form of soap and it is also used in laundries, paper mills and color manufacturers, druggists, photographers for bleaching and in the manufacture of various products as flour, glycol, candles, etc.

Ernest Solvay, a great industrialist, has been called the "Bismarck of Chemistry." Born in humble circumstances, Solvay, by his wonderful perseverance and energy, saved his fortune in the commercial failure of which it was the seed. Like Carnegie, also, Solvay is a great philanthropist and the fortune that he has gained is the result of his early struggles and continued labor. He is distributing the benefit of mankind more espe-

SURVIVORS OF WRECKED VOLTURNO

Some of the 108 survivors of the burned Voltorno, who were brought to New York on board the North German Lloyd liner, Grosser Kurfuerst. All of the 108 were men. This fact was explained by one of the Kurfuerst's officers, who had charge of one of the lifeboats that engaged in the rescue work. He said that the Kurfuerst's boats were the first to reach the side of the burning ship and that when the men in the lifeboats told the terror-stricken passengers to jump and be saved, the women were afraid to take the chance, having already seen others swallowed by the raging fire. All of the men brought in by the Kurfuerst had jumped for it.

Jeweled Cuff Links. Round, amethyst cuff links, about the size of an American dime, with the surface of the stone cut in checker-board design and surrounded by diamonds.

The "Cassacquin." The "Cassacquin" jacket is the newest and most useful thing of its kind in Paris and although it belongs in the same category as the blouse, it is decidedly more formal. It may be made without any lining, and of the softest silk of any color, or cretonne, or toile de Jouy. It must hang very loosely. A very thick cording joins the upper portion to the tunic and finishes the sleeves. A plaited, tulle-trimmed collar is worn with it. When such a jacket is worn with an odd skirt, either of evening or day material, the result is charming.

Now that it is quite the latest fashion for the smart women to remove her tailored suit when she returns from a morning walk, and slip into a dishabille, this comfortable and dainty costume is extremely popular. The skirt is made of pale blue, unlined chiffon, with an overdress of lace. The same lace completely drapes the bodice.

A Picturesque Paragon. Martial of Armand are showing a picturesque paragon, a very flat and wide affair. The white crepe de chine of the cover is flattered by a long handle of white lacquered wood, banded with gold. Be they flat or round, long handles are the smartest. Other shops show varieties of handles in lacquered, snakedwood, wood, amourette and Arab wood. The Arab wood is beautifully tinted and looks almost transparent so that the clear dark wood at the top of the handle gradually fades into that of the cover on the paragon.

Moire bags continue in favor, and dark-green leather bags are also exhibited in the best shops. Martial of Armand display a very pretty bag of moire made in two divisions and held together by a silver-link chain. The pockets on the lower side of the bag may be opened safely.
